& Regulations*

The Horicon Marsh

The 32,000 acre Horicon Marsh is divided into the Horicon National Wildlife Refuge (managed by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service) and the Horicon Marsh State Wildlife Area (managed by the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources). The two areas have different regulations and different season dates. You are responsible for knowing the boundary and abiding by these regulations.

Species

Horicon National Wildlife Refuge is only open for hunting of pheasant, partridge, squirrel, rabbit and deer. The Horicon Marsh State Wildlife Area is open for hunting of all species in accordance to statewide seasons.

Season Dates

Horicon National Wildlife Refuge and the Horicon Marsh State Wildlife Area are open in accordance to all current statewide hunting seasons and regulations. Refer to the map for areas that are restricted or closed. The only exception to season dates is that the refuge will not be open for the October antlerless-only gun hunt. Refuge access is restricted to an hour before, to an hour after legal hunting activities.

Trapping is authorized on a permit system only and special regulations apply.

Prohibited Activities

In addition to the prohibited activities listed in the Wisconsin Hunting Regulations pamphlets, the following are also prohibited on both the Horicon National Wildlife Refuge and the Horicon Marsh State Wildlife Area:

- Overnight camping or parking
- Open fires
- Blocking access to gates with vehicles
- Use of horses
- Use of motorized vehicles or ATVs
- Baiting
- Construction of permanent blinds or damage to trees
- Leaving portable blinds overnight
- Use or possession of alcoholic beverages while hunting
- Target practice

The following activities are also prohibited on the Horicon National Wildlife Refuge:

- Toxic shot when hunting small game
- Shining
- Boats
- Scouting
